1. Instacart

Instacart is similar to a food delivery service. However, instead of going to restaurants the customer selects groceries and you pick those up instead. You are essentially a personal grocery shopper. This is another application similar to Uber where you can choose to work whenever you want and you can make over $100 a day! There are many ways to maximize your profits through this method. Therefore, I have provided a video by Aleks Haugom where he shows you 27 tips to make more money as an Instacart shopper!

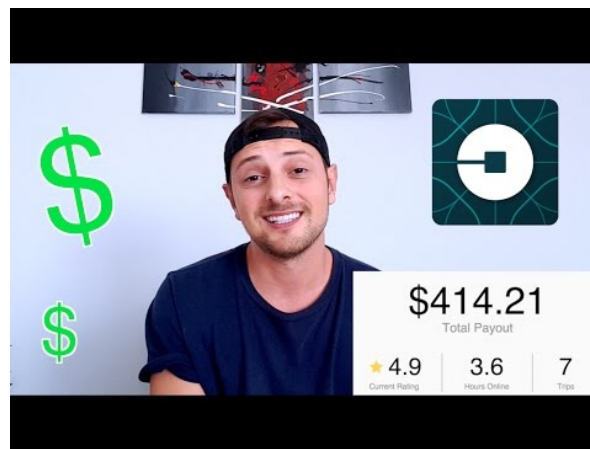

2. Daily Rewards

The first way to earn that first $100 is Dailyrewards. Daily rewards are similar to Surveyjunkie in the sense that you can fill out surveys in order to make money. However, there are quite a few differences between the two programs. DailyRewards does not just utilize surveys to pay their members. There are many different features that can be taken advantage of to maximize earnings. For example, DailyRewards offers the user the option to play games and be rewarded for it!

The fastest way to earn money on this site would be through surveys because many of them are short. This means you can do a large amount of them in a relatively short period of time! Each survey can earn you $0.50 – $2.00. Although this may seem like a small amount it does accumulate over time. It's one of the easiest ways to make a quick buck. 3. Earn Though Uber

Transporting passengers through Uber can be extremely lucrative! This option can easily make you over $100 dollars in a day. However, since Uber has such a low barrier for entry, many people are doing it. The trick is to do it at certain times! You don't need much to get this started. All you need is a car after 2009, valid license, no accidents within 3 years and to get the car's safety standards done. Once this is all done you can begin Ubering in one week!

I've done Uber before and recorded my earnings so that I can share the numbers with you all. In one week of doing Uber, I made $235.25. However, I also added up the number of hours I did through the week, 9 hours and 46 minutes. This means that if you take the amount, divide it by the time (let's say 10 hours). You would have made $23.53 per hour! That is almost $10 more than the minimum wage here in Ontario! Not to mention that this was during my spare time. For anyone who is on the fence about joining Uber, the number speaks for itself! Feel free to use my invite code 87UDESQ5UE to get started!

4. Uber Eats

Uber Eats is another great way to make $100! Although it is not as lucrative as ridesharing, it's still an amazing opportunity. The way Uber Eats works is similar to the ride sharing. You turn on the app and wait until you get a request! Once you get a request, accept it and head to the restaurant that the customer selected. Once you've arrived, pick up the food and drop it off to the customer! Each trip can average $5 – $20 depending on the distance! Furthermore, you can do both ride sharing and delivery at the same time to maximize potential earnings in a day. Check out this video by Rideshare Genius and see how much he makes in a day!

5. Selling Old Items

This one can serve two roles, making a bit of money and cleaning out your closet. There are many ways you can do this. One of the older ways of doing this is a garage sale! Print out some posters and put them around town. Once this is done, display everything nicely and wait for people to pass by and hopefully buy something! However, this would most likely be the least efficient way to sell your items. Next, you can try selling your old items on Ebay, Kijiji or Craigslist! Simply take a picture of your items, post it online, put a description and set a price! Once this is done potential buyers will be able to contact you and inquire about the items! You can then meet up with them to sell your item.

6. Odd Jobs

This one is another interesting option with many different methods. You can find many different odd jobs through Indeed, Craigslist or even Kijiji! Many of the odd jobs you'll see are transportation services or manual labor. However, it can be a good way to get a casual job and earn a little extra money quickly. Simply go onto Indeed.ca and type in odd jobs. You may be surprised by what you find!

If you have experience in the food & service industry and live within the GTA the may be an app that's perfect for you! The app is called HYR and it allows you to pick up shifts from local restaurants! The way it works is that you download the app, create an account and apply for shifts! These shifts can be for dishwashing, busing, hosting or sometimes even serving! It is a great way for you to gain some experience and a little extra cash!

7. Baby/Pet/House Sit

Doing any one of these three things can be a great way to earn extra cash. However, you'll need to be a trustworthy person with a clean background. This is due to the fact that you'll be around people possessions so they'll want someone who they know they can trust. However, this can make you quite a bit of money, sometimes more than $100 a day depending on what you're looking after. For example, if someone has multiple pets and they want you to look after, clean, feed and walk them, you can charge per animal.

Another way is charging based on the size and area of the house! Furthermore, once knew a lady who would babysit a few kids per week and would clear over $1000 per week! The funny thing was that she wasn't babysitting actual babies. She would take care of a few kids after school for a couple of hours until their parents were done work! $50 dollars per kid for 5 kids! That's quite a bit of money if you ask me!
